Itles of a Change, Either for Better | 92c. or Worse-A Review of the Bustnoss in New York for a Week.

Special Correspondence of Tan Criters. NEW YORK, October 30 .- Business been exceedingly dull the past week, $44,000. although the total amount of sales at both boards shows the fair volume of 690,120 shares. But about 75 or 80 per cent. of these sales represents stocks averaging less than 40 cents per share, and thus the amount of business, as measured in dollars and ceuts, is very small indeed, as compared with the hundreds of brokers, clerks, messengers and other employes dependent upon this branch of trade. Some of the stocks have been fairly active, but business has been almost entirely speculative. The public seem to be very little interested in mining stocks, and although a superficial observer might regard the looks of the market as showing an improved tone. well-informed men regard the situation as far from encouraging. The nearness of the Presidential election is, of course, also to be taken into con. of actual developments. Certainly a sideration in an enumeration of the new lease of life would be given these causes of the present duliness; but this cause would have had little effect is not made at an early date it is not (as can be seen in the old Stock Ex- likely that even the long-suffering change, where speculation in railroad and sanguine people of San Francisco stocks, etc., is active and buoyant,) will care to pay assessments as they tached to the market. One thing, however, may be looked upon as certain-that, no matter what disposition is made of the "fancies," which now almost monopolize the attention of the brokers in the Exchanges, or what the future of the New York Exchanges will be, the fuscinations of the mining industry have too firm a hold upon the Eastern public that any diminution of interest in mining properties on the part of the moneyed men of the East properties have failed to tulfill the topes that at one time were based upon their merits, will undoubtedly, in the long run, prove of very great advantage to the Eastern public. Less dependence will be placed upon the assertions and promises of promoters of mines and the reports of the paid experts of these promoters; less stock will be bought upon the mere statements of interested parties, and men will themselves examine, or have exarained in their interest, the merits of mines in which they are invited to

The Leadville properties, which have of late absorbed most of the attention of the broker fraternity, still continue to be the main feature of speculation. The apparent desire thus far manifested on the part of the new managements of several of these companies to develop their resources in an economical and legitimate man-ner is having the effect of renewing confidence to a certain extent in mines that have hitherto borne bad reputations; and if these mines continue to be honestly worked in the interest of the shareholders, there is a faint hope, that Chrysolite, Little Chief and Amie will yet become paying properties.

Every breeze that comes to us out of the distances, near and far, and from every segment of the wide horizon, is heavy with a voice mourning for sorrow accomplished, and the berden of the mourning is, "The aged and stricken Democratic party is dying;" and the burden of the lament will be, "The mighty is fallen; the Democratic pary is dead." And who and what is he that is dying and will presently be dead? A foot-sore political wanderer, a hoary political tramp, an itinerant poor actor familiar with many disgulses, a butcher of many parts. In the North he played " Protection and "Hard Money." In the West he played "Protection," "Free Trade," "Hard Money" and "Soft Money," ing to the exigencies of the occasion. In the South he played " furiff for Re enue;" in the North and the West he played the "Apostle of Freedom, and mouthed the sacr.d shibboleths of liberty with cruel and bloody lips. His latest and final appea ance upon the nation's stage was in the new piece entitled "Forgery"-s farce-Statistics gathered by the Railway strength of the company.
